INTRODUCTION

In this history of the Malcolm Family the compilers of the data have extended their research only to the descendants of the first ancestors in America. It should be understood that the purpose of this genealogy is to preserve the material so laboriously gathered for the use and interest of those who may read it, and in the further hope that at some future time an abler genealogist may carry the work to completion. As far as it goes, the records here presented are for the most part entirely reliable.

Fifteen years ago I started to trace down my own line of descent, and have been led step by step to undertake this work. The field of research has constanty widened until I have gathered more or less complete records of the families descended from the fifteen children of Captain Finlay Malcolm, the son of Duncan Malcolm who was the emigrant ancestor.

This genealogy is a family effort. Let me here acknowledge the able contributions furnished by my two uncles, Duncan Warwick Malcolm and Charles John Malcolm; also Mrs. Clara Smith Malcolm and Hattie Malcolm of Scotland, Ont.; Mrs. Emerson Bigelow of Howell, Mich.; Shubael Douglas Malcolm of New York; Prof. Orlin Ottman Fletcher of Greenville, S. C.; and my late brother Hayward Malcolm who was a lifelong resident of Scotland, Ont., and probably knew more individual Malcolms and Malcolm families than any other person. He knew where they lived and personally escorted me to their homes for interviews on their particular families.

Maximum credit for much of the early research and painstaking effort put into this work, in assembling and putting it into chart form, goes to Norman Malcolm of West Nyack, N. Y., and Box 465, Route 3, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Olin Ottman Fletcher. Without their personal sacrifice of time, money and hard work there would be no written record of the Malcolm family today.

It was my privilege to have lived in Scotland, Ont., at a time when many of the older generation were still living and active, and to have had a personal acquaintance with them and their families, thus enabling me to add several hundred names of the present and past generation with the able assistance of my brother Hayward Malcolm.

My appreciation is also expressed for the able assistance of Mrs. Madeleine Crozer Smith, who has written these pages from my extensive notes and has prepared the material for publication. She also has a special interest in it since she is a direct descendant of Thomas Wardwell who came to Boston in 1633, as are all the Malcolm families.

We who have earnestly endeavored to collect all of the facts must expect that some persons may be disappointed with this necessarily incomplete record. No person or family has been omitted where it has been possible to obtain the necessary information.

I trust that those who read this family history will have as much satisfaction and pleasure in the reading of these pages as we who have labored days and years in compiling the records.

History of the Malcolm Family

The name "Malcolm" is an honorable one in Scottish history. Shubael Douglas Malcolm, a man of many talents, who had for one of his hobbies long made a study of the derivation of names, asserts the name is derived from Mael-Columba, meaning follower or servant of Columba (521-597) missionary to the Picts of Caledonia, and founder of a monastery on the Isle of Iona.

There were four Malcolm Kings of Scotland in early history. The most noteworthy one was Malcolm III (d. 1093) called Cunmore, and made famous by Shakespeare in Macbeth.

The Malcolm Clan were Highlanders. They were strenuous fighters, so that the Clan was much reduced in numbers and power until they were finally forced to seek protection by joining with their neighobrs, the Campbells of Argyllshire. There is an account of an instance of this pugnacity by which the Malcolms nearly annihilated themselves. It reads: "By continued warfare with their neighboring clans, and quarrels among themselves, the Malcolms were so reduced that there remained only the Laird and two of his sons. Fearing total extinction of the clan the Laird ordered the two sons to mount their horses and giving to each a pannier sent the two in opposite directions to continue until the panniers dropped from the horses. There they were to abide, which they did."

Years later the descendants of the two sons, longing to visit the scenes of their ancient habitat, set out at nearly the same time for that purpose. Finally the two groups of about thirty men each met at the crossing of a stream. A battle ensued with such ferocity that there remained but one contestant on each side. Exhausted, they sat down to rest before continuing the fray. Engaging in conversation they soon learned that they both were "Malcolms." So the Malcolms of the present times are descended from those who survived this battle.

Those who know their Scottish History will recall that in 1745 "The Young Pretender," so called by the Hanoverian English, or "Bonnie Prince Charlie" by the Stuart sympathizers among the Scots, including most of the Highlanders, landed in Scotland from France, raised some forces, invaded England, and caused a panic in London referred to as "Black Friday" or as "Forty-five," Dec. 6, 1745. He turned back from Derby because the English did not rally to his banners, was pursued by the Duke of Cumberland's forces and engaged in a fierce battle at Culloden Moor, April 16, 1746. The Duke pursued, harried and executed Prince Charles' supporters with such ferocity as to arouse protests, even in England. Naturally such as could, escaped; some to Ulster and some to the American Colonies.

Our emigrant ancestor, Duncan Malcolm, was one of these refugees. He is said to have been a native of Aberdeenshire, Scotland. Duncan Malcolm joined his fortune with that of Charles Stuart, grandson of Charles I. of England and a great-grandson of Mary, Queen of Scots. The Battle of Culloden shattered the hopes of Prince Charles and the fortune of Duncan Malcolm. In 1774, he removed with his family of ten children to America. The first official record of Duncan was obtained from the Census of 1776 in which he was reported as "Living east of Watermill," near Southampton, Long Island, and having the following family:

Males over 16	3	Females over 16	2
Males under 16	3	Females under 16.....	1

The children of Duncan Malcolm were all born in Old Scotland. No record of his wife has been found. Finley I., born in 1751, is the eldest child known. The others were; Malcolm, born 1755; John, born 1756; Daniel, born 1763; Janet, born 1764; Duncan, Jr., born about 1767. These, and perhaps three or four others, came with their father to America and settled on Long Island.

After the Battle of Long Island, Aug. 27, 1776, between the American and British forces, all of Long Island was surrendered to the British. The people generally were obliged to take an Oath of Allegiance. The general form of the Oath was this:

"I do swear upon the evangelist of Almighty God, that I hold true and faithful allegiance to his Majesty King George the Third of Great Britain, his heirs and successors; and hold an utter abhorrence of congresses, rebellions, etc., and do promise never to be concerned in any manner with his Majesty's rebellious subjects in America. So help me God."

In order to avoid taking this Oath, many thousands became Refugees. The State of New York impressed into service a number of vessels to transport the Refugees and their goods from Long Island to Connecticut. On the second trip early in September, 1776, the Sloop Dove of Saybrook, Conn., 30 tons burthen, Elijah Mason, Master, carried from Sag Harbor to Chester on the Connecticut River, among others, "Dunkin McCollom (McCallum), 5 persons, 1 lode goods, 2 Hogs." It may be assumed that Duncan and his family proceeded to Middlefield, Conn., where next we find that his daughter, Janet, married Deacon Giles Miller, Jr., Nov. 16, 1780. (First Church, Middletown, record.) The Millers also had previously lived on Long Island. Thus Duncan fled to Connecticut with some of his children, but no trace of any except Daniel has been found there.

About this time Finlay I went to Maine, to a seaport called Penobscot, where the river of the same name flows into the bay. This place is now called Castine. The earliest and best record of Finlay I. is found in Dr. Wheeler's excellent "History of Castine, Maine," with numerous references to Finlay's activities as pioneer settler, ship captain, active Tory, and, finally, evacue to Nova Scotia.

Modern Castine is situated on the island of that name near the mouth of the Penobscot river. It was variously called in olden times Majabigwaduce (its Indian name), Penobscot, Fort George, or Castinex. There was a log fort which was occupied by the British troops—many of whom were Scots—throughout the American Revolution in spite of a long seige by the Colonials. During the seige Dr. Calef, British Medical Officer in the fort, kept a Journal which became of great historical interest and which is copied bodily in Wheeler's History. Calef's Journal states that "Finlay Malcolm, on His Majesties Service, was the only civilian admitted to the fort without a pass." There was great activity in those days in getting out timber for English ships and it was probably thus that Finlay was engaged. Here he met and married Tryphena Wardwell, who was born in York, Maine.

A great many of the early settlers of Penobscot came from York, Maine, including the Wardwells. From the Wardwell family records we learn that Finlay Malcolm married Tryphena Wardwell, daughter of Capt. Daniel Wardwell of York. The ancestry of Trypena is important equally with that of Finlay and is recorded back to much earlier dates in England and Massachusetts, and in addition is involved in some stirring historical events.

Our ancestor, Thomas Wardwell, was born in Alford, Lincolnshire, England, in 1602. He and his brother William, along with Rev. John Cotton, Edmund Quincey and 200 others, arrived in Boston, 4 Sept., 1633, on the ship "Griffin" in eight weeks from The Downs. This party included Wheelwright, Anne Hutchinson and others who were to figure prominently in the history of Massachusetts Bay Colony, particularly in the Antinomian Controversy. The Wardwell brothers were listed as servants to Bro. Edmund Quincey. Elizabeth Woodruff was listed as maid-servant to Madam Quincey. Winthrop's Journal recorded the arrival of the party as "persons of quality." Not long after arrival, Thomas Wardwell and Elizabeth Woodruff were married, and Thomas became one of the Freemen.

The Puritans were themselves non-conformists and founded the Massachusetts colony in 1630 to enjoy liberty of conscience, but they could not amicably tolerate those who differed from their own rigid views. Anne Hutchinson was banished from the colony in 1637 to be killed by the Indians at Hell Gate, N. Y., in 1643. Thomas Wardwell was deprived of his arms and excluded from the colony. He removed to Andover, Mass., where he was later restored to good standing. He raised a considerable family, including sons Eliakim, Benjamin, Samuel, and a daughter, Martha.

Samuel married Sarah Hooper Hawkes, a daughter of William and Elizabeth (Marshall) Hooper of Reading, Mass., who was a widow. They had six children; Marcy, born in 1673; Elizabeth, born in 1674/5; Samuel, born in 1676; William, born in 1679; Eliakim, born in 1687; Rebeckah, born in 1691.

In 1692 these children were from one to nineteen years of age. Then occurred that horrid and disgraceful delusion known as "The Salem Witchcraft." Samuel and his wife were two of the accused, along with many others. Sarah was freed, but Samuel was found guilty and hanged at Salem, Sept. 22, 1692, as appears on page 210 of The History of Andover, Mass., by Sarah Loring Bailey. Samuel at his first examination had confessed, but in a short time recanted his confession. He did this in the spirit of martyrdom, saying that he had once "belyed himself," but that he begged forgiveness for it, and though he knew that to persist in his recantation would cost him his life he would hold to the truth.

In his confession he admitted that he was guilty of covenanting with the devil. He said it was on this wise: Some years ago he had "fallen into a discontented state of mind because he was in love with a maid named Barker who slighted his love." While thus melancholy, one day, being behind Mr. Bradstreet's house, he saw "some catts together." One of these cats, as he related, "assuming the form of the black man," spoke to him, promising that "he should live comfortably and be a captain," if he would sign the book. He was induced to make the signature, and was baptized in the Shawshin River, where "he was dipt all over, and renounced his former baptism."

In his recantation of this confession, the prisoner gave as his reason for ever making such a statement, that the examiners had insisted that he was a servant of the devil, and had urged him to name the time when he made the covenant and being thus driven to specify the time, he had persuaded himself there must have been such a time, and he had gone back to this period of dejection as the only one in which he was likely to have done the deed. It would seem as though he and the others who confessed were unsettled in their own right reason and judgment by the many voices against them, the overwhelming evidence, and the importunities of the examiners that they would confess, and searching back over their past lives for some consciously or unconsciously made covenant, found it in circumstances of mental depression or bodily suffering, the remembrance of which became clouded with phantoms conjured up by the fears of the hour. Nor would it be strange that a person, especially, who had so often exercised the pretended gift of fortune-telling, should half suspect himself of being under the power of supernatural beings. It cannot, therefore, be much wondered at that the simple-minded fortune teller of the seventeenth century, in old Andover, Mass., when his minister and all the most devout magistrates told him he was a witch, should, temporarily, at least, believe that he was.

But it shows that he had, in spite of all his odd ways, more strength of character and real principle than might at first be supposed, that he did not long remain thus obscured as to his estimate of himself. At the last, although he knew that his only hope of safety was in adhering to his confession, he wholly denied its truth. His mind, once cleared, became strong and steady, and his statements true and consistent. On the gallows he protested his innocence.

The account presented by the sons of Samuel Wardwell (at a later date) shows that there was taken by the government to pay the expenses of his trial and execution the following: five cows, one heifer and a yearling; nine hogs; eight loads of hay; a set of carpenter tools; six acres of corn upon the ground.

What was the condition of the young children of Samuel Wardwell, their father hanged and their mother in prison, we learn from a record of the selectmen of Andover, part of which also is recorded in the Essex County Court Papers:

"Wee ye subscribers selectmen of Andover ye abovesd year, having informed ye Quarter Sessions at Ipswich ye 27th of ye abovesd September that there was severall children of Sam'l Wardwels yt was in a suffering condition begging their advice direction & order as followes yt ye Selectmen for the time being should place out, or if need require bind out sd children in good and honest families, referring to a law in that case provided. Persuant to this order of ye Court wee have placed them as follows: viz Samuel Wardwell we placed with John Ballard his uncle for one year, William we placed with Corpl Saml ffrie till he come to be of ye age of one and twenty years; sd ffrie to learne him ye trade of a weaver. Eliakim we placed to Daniel Poor till he was twenty-one years of age & Elizabeth we placed with John Stevens till eighteen years of age, all ye abovesd were to find them with suites of apparel att ye end of sd term of tyme.

This unfortunate Wardwell incident is of special interest for another reason. In 1692, Daniel Poor, a maternal ancestor of Norman Malcolm (128), was living in Andover, Mass. When the widow Wardwell was bereft of her husband she was disgraced and destitute with six children. The children were taken in charge by the Town and bound out. Eliakim Wardwell, aged 5 years, was bound out to Daniel Poor. Thus both his maternal and paternal family lines were crossed historically a long time ago, but the fact did not come to light for over 200 years.

When Eliakim reached his majority he mirgated to York, Maine, and there married, Dec. 4, 1711, Ruth Bragdon, a daughter of Samuel and Mary (Moulton) Bragdon. Samuel Bragdon was born in 1645, a son of Arthur Bragdon who was born in 1597 at Stratford-on-Avon, England, and died in 1678 at York, Maine. Mary Moulton was born in 1651 at Hampton, N. H. She was a daughter of Thomas Moulton from Great Ormsby, Norfolk, England, who came to York, Maine, in 1637 and the next year removed to Hampton, N. H.

In one of the several York massacres Eliakim's wife Ruth was carried off by the Indians, forced to become the wife of one of the chiefs and by him had a daughter. Later she escaped and returned to York with the child. That child grew to maturity and became a member of one of the families residing on Deer Island. These statements are recorded in the History of York, and in numerous allied family records.

The children of Eliakim and Ruth (Bragdon) Wardwell were: Mary, born 1712; Abigail, born 1714; Hannah, born 1716; Joseph, born 1718; (Meribah, born 1722, daughter of an Indian Chief); Samuel, born 1724; Eliakim, born 1726; Lydia, born 1728; Hephzibah, born 1730; Jeremiah, born 1732; Daniel, born 1734.

Capt. Daniel Wardwell, born 1734, married in 1755 Sarah Staples, a daughter of William and Elizabeth (Jones) Staples. They had a daughter, Tryphena Wardwell, born in 1761 at York, Maine. She married in 1776 Finlay Malcolm of Castine, Maine. See Finlay Malcolm (4) in the Genealogy.

At the time of the American Revolution, Finlay Malcolm remained loyal to the British. He was then living at Fort George, which had been abandoned by the British some years earlier but was reoccupied in 1778 as a refuge for the loyalists of Maine. Unfortunately for this plan, Fort George, as it had been renamed, though safely held during the war, was lost by the peace of 1783.

An association called the Penobscot Association of Loyalists was formed at this place. In the possession of Dr. W. O. Raymond of St. John, New Brunswick, an authority on the early history of New Brunswick, is a very interesting document called "Return or Muster Roll" of men, women and children of Penobscot Loyalists, 10th of June 1784. The total number is 649. The certificate of Muster Master is appended: "I do certify that the annexed named men and women and children are actually present and are by the King's instruction, entitled to their proportions of Royal Bounty."

Signed: Gillian Taylor, June 2, 1784, St. Andrews.

Among the names of the men stands that of Finlay Malcolm, 24th in order. Among the names of the women, that of Tryphena Malcolm appears. As there were no other adult Malcolms in the return, we may safely assume they were husband and wife. Among the names of children are those of John Malcolm and Finlay Malcolm.

After the War was over, the tables were turned and the loyalists became the refugees. Many thousands of those who had been loyal to Great Britain were forced to leave their possessions and seek shelter in Canada or elsewhere. Some returned to the British Isles after the Treaty of Peace in 1783. Their banishment was a foregone conclusion.

The Loyalists who emigrated to Nova Scotia, almost without exception, were conveyed by ship. Those who found themselves cut off from the Atlantic Seaboard emigrated by overland routes to Ontario and Quebec. Not less than 35,000 destitute Loyalists poured into Nova Scotia in successive batches during the year 1783. They were still arriving in the bitter month of January. In some instances little or nothing had been done for them. A wild and lonely shore faced them when they disembarked. The brush had to be cut before they could pitch their tents or build their rough shacks. There was nothing before them but an unbroken wilderness and nothing behind them but the grey sea. The suffering of the aged and infirm, the women, and the children was very great. It was endured with amazing fortitude, but many died of cold and exposure. The story of the exiled Loyalists rivals, in pathos, that of the French Acadians. Even in their exile, they still hoped that they might return, and that their property would be restored.

Great Britain, in view of these distressing circumstances, felt it incumbent upon her to provide for the removal of those who did not wish to remain, and to help them to make new homes in Canada and other places. To this end nearly three million pounds sterling were spent to establish them in other places and 3,000,000 acres of land were given them exempt from taxes.

At that time the Province of Nova Scotia included what is now known as New Brunswick, and therefore the condition of the Penobscot Loyalists was a much happier one. In the first place, because they lived in the State of Maine, they were close to the place of refuge that had been allotted to them, namely, along the St. Croix River. which is the boundary line between Maine and New Brunswick. Another thing in their favor was that the Fort where they were living was evacuated at their convenience or leisure. Some did not leave until the following year.

A number of the new houses erected for them were framed in Castine and then transported to St. Andrews, New Brunswick. The 19,000 acres assigned to them included the town plot of St. Andrews and nearly all of the river lots from there to the head of the tide, a distance of 25 miles. Energetic and experienced men took charge and the Loyalists soon developed an extensive trade. The timber of the forests was wrought into ships which sailed on every sea.

Among the grantees is the name of Finlay Malcolm, who had been a sea captain. He owned a trading vessel which plied between Scotland and America. After residing fifteen years in this place, Finlay became restless and decided to sell his holdings and go to West Canada. There is a tradition in the family that relates he made this move because he feared his sons, of whom he had five, would take to seafaring if brought up near the ocean. Other Loyalists, who had heard of the great fertility of the soil in Upper Canada, also decided to leave.

The following letter from George F. Hibbard, Registrar of Deeds of St. Andrews, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, sets forth the various transactions in connection with the disposal of the property of Finlay Malcolm.

St. Andrews, N. B., Sept. 13, 1907

O. O. Fletcher, Esq.,
Chicopee Falls, Mass.

Dear Sir:—

In reply to your favor of the 10th inst., beg to say I have made search as requested and find the name of Finlay Malcolm appearing in the early Records of Charlotte County.

John Dunn conveyed by Deed to Finlay Malcolm 100 acres, Lot No. 57 in Parish of St. Andrews, dated May 4, A.D. 1791.

Neil Brown conveyed by Deed to Finlay Malcolm, Lot in Parish of St. Stephen, fronting on the River Schoodiac (St. Croix), dated July A.D. 1795.

Finlay Malcolm also seems to have held certain other lots in St. Andrews, which were granted to him by the Crown, and which grants are not registered upon our County Records.

Finlay Malcolm conveyed by Deed to Wm. Vance, 3 Lots in Parish of St. Andrews County, 100 acres each—300 acres more or less, viz.

Lot No. 57, purchased from John Dunn, Esq.
Lot No. 58, granted to me, the said Malcolm,
Lot No. 59, purchased of Timothy Roix, all which Lots being granted by the Government of Nova Scotia. Deed dated July 4, A.D. 1795.

Finlay Malcolm conveyed to Charles Walker, Lot in Town of St. Andrews, drawn by me, the said Finlay Malcolm. Dated July 10, 1795.

Finlay Malcolm conveyed to John Berry, Lot in Parish of St. Stephen, conveyed to him by Neil Brown. July 11, 1795.

The name of Traphina (Tryphena) Malcolm does not appear in any of the above Conveyances. I have followed along for many years and do not find Finlay Malcolm's name appearing—it seems to have dropped out later on.

I trust the above information will be of some service to you. Fee search and memo, say $1.00. I am,

Yours very truly,

(signed) Geo. F. Hibbard, Regt. of Deeds

In the summer of 1798 we find Finlay Malcolm and his family setting sail by way of the Gulf and River St. Lawrence for Upper Canada. While enroute to Upper Canada, Aug. 1, 1798, his son Duncan was born "on the water, enroute" on the St. Lawrence.

Settlements at this time consisted of the merest fringe around the margin of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie. Quite a number had settled around what is now called Kingston. We have no record of their adventures, but know they wished to settle on British ground.

Inasmuch as Finlay Malcolm and his family were headed for the interior in the neighborhood of Brantford, Ontario, it will be of interest to note the early history of that place.

Brantford is named in honor of the Mohawk Indian Chief, Joseph Brant, who was born on the banks of the Ohio river in 1742. In early youth he was educated by Dr. Eleazar Wheelock at Lebanon, Conn., in Moor's Indian Charity School in which Dartmouth College had its origin. At the outbreak of the American Revolution he remained loyal to the British Crown, was made a Colonel, and organized and lead the Mohawks and other Indians allied to the British against the settlements on the New York frontier. After the war, he discouraged the continuance of Indian warfare on the frontier, and aided the Commissioner of the United States in securing treaties of peace with the western tribes. His character was a peculiar compound of the traits of an Indian warrior—with few rivals for daring leadership—and of a civilized politician and diplomat of the more conservative type.

Joseph Brant made the long journey to Quebec to take counsel with Governor Haldimand, who assured him that a tract of land would be reserved for his peaple. Accordingly a tract of land six miles wide on either side of the Grand River was assigned to them. In 1784 the hitherto quiet valley of the Grand River had the silence disturbed by 600 members of the Six Nations Indians. They landed at the bend of the stream near the site of the Mohawk Church, which was erected one year later and is now the only surviving structure of that era. This event constituted the foundation of Brantford. The descendants of the Mohawks may be seen today peacefully cultivating the soil of the Mohawk reserve, while the neighboring city of Brantford, by its name, immortalizes the memory of the great Chief.

Settling in Upper Canada, Brant devoted himself to missionary work, and in 1786 visited England where he raised funds with which was erected the first Episcopal Church in Upper Canada. He died on an estate granted him by the British Government on the banks of Lake Ontario on the 24th of November, 1807. A monument was erected to his memory at Brantford, Ont., in 1886.

It would appear that Finlay Malcolm and his family settled for the first three or four years in the Township of Oakland, where there was a small settlement two miles east of the spot where he eventually made his home.

There is a record of the marriage of his daughter, Sarah, to Charles Eddy, which took place at Oakland in 1802. Squire Tyler married them, there being no minister at Oakland at that time, nor for many years after.

Finlay did not take out a patent for his home in Scotland, Ont., until 1802. As has been learned from an old abstract, Oakland Township was in the County of Oxford until 1851 when it became a Township of Brant County. The registering was done in Toronto until 1851, after that in Brantford.

When Finlay Malcolm arrived in Upper Canada he had 10 of his children, 6 sons and 4 daughters. He had plenty of help to clear the land and hew out a home in the forest. Two of the elder sons, John and Finlay, had farms in and near Oakland Village, and the grist mill at Oakland belonged to them jointly. The family was very enterprising and in the course of years they established five mills on the creek which runs between Scotland and Oakland; a woolen mill, a grist mill, and a saw mill at Scotland, and grist mills at Oakland and lower Oakland. The machinery for these mills was furnished by the Government. The creek between Scotland and Oakland was called Malcolm's Creek. The present village of Scotland was known for some years as Malcolm's Mills. Finlay Malcolm established his homestead on the brow of the hill at Scotland, just as one enters the village on the north side of the Oakland Road, No. 9 on the map. It was a beautiful site overlooking the valley to the east, with a grove back of it. South of the homestead, across the street, he set out a very large orchard, which extended from the site of the present hotel to the bottom of the hill near the site of the woolen mill. This orchard proved a boon to the settlers for miles around; people came from as far as Waterloo to purchase the fruit. It was still in existence as late as 1870, but of course in a badly run down condition. There was a large cider mill where Mrs. Howson's house now stands.

In 1800 twins were born to Finlay and Tryphena, a daughter and a son, then three more sons; thus making fifteen children altogether. Their names were: John, Daniel, Finlay, Hugh, Peter, Duncan, James and Catherine were twins, Eliakim, Charles, and George. Other daughters were: Sarah, Margaret, Tryphena, and Janet. When the sons reached adult age they were settled on farms in the vicinity, excepting two elder sons, John and Finlay II, who settled at Oakland.

Finlay's farm and homestead, No. 1 on the map, is now the home of Park Vivian, a great grandson of Finlay II. Part of the farm nearest Oakland was given to Shubael, one of the sons of Finlay II. It has never been out of the hands of the Malcolm family, until 1947, when it was sold by Herbert Bailey of Corunna, Michigan, a great-grandson of Finlay II. John's farm No. 4 extended across the pond, south of the mill, but little is known of his farm. The mill, No. 2 on the map, which belonged jointly to John and Finlay II, as before stated, was sold to an Englishman, John Vivian, who carried on the business for many years. His wife was Tryphena Malcolm, a daughter of John Malcolm. This mill has continued in the family of the Vivians up to the present time. Payson Vivian, a great-grandson of John Malcolm, now owns and operates the mill.

Daniel, for some unknown reason, preferred to leave his family and make a home for himself farther afield. He went to the township of Walsingham, near St. Thomas, and some of his descendants are living in that district today.

Another son, Hugh, was given the farm just north of the village, now known as the McCutcheon farm. No. 5 in the map. Hugh was killed at a barn raising while still a young man, and his farm has changed hands may times.

Peter's farm, No. 8 on the map, adjoined the western part of the village of Scotland. Many of the village lots and the site of the Congregational Church were formerly a part of his farm, the rest of which has been in the hands of Peter's descendants until very recent years. Then Fred W. Smith, a grandsom of James Malcolm, acquired it. After Fred's death it was sold again.

Duncan's farm was about ¾ of a mile south of the village on the Simcoe Road, No. 10 on the map. It was never out of the possession of the family until the death of Eugene G. Malcolm, a grandson of Duncan. About 1927 it passed into the hands of strangers.

The farm of James, No. 6 on the map, was a mile or less northeast of the village. The old house, that was built after the first log house burned, is still standing and has passed the century mark. In later years it was known as the Hamilton Smith farm.

Eliakim's farm, No. 11 on the map, was southeast of the village and adjoined that of Duncan's. It is the only one of the original farms now owned and operated by one of the Malcolms in Scotland. John, son of Jonathan who was the eldest son of Eliakim, died in 1944 and his son Clarence inherited the farm and lives there. John was 84 years old at the time of his death.

Charles, the ninth son, took up land at Lake Hungar, in what was called the Pine Belt, 10 or 12 miles southwest of Scotland, No. 13 on the map. The old homestead is now owned and occupied by John Malcolm, son of Edward and greatgrandson of Charles.

To George, the youngest son, Finlay left the homestead in Scotland, No. 9 on the map, but it soon passed out of his hands into those of his brother, Eliakim, who, to put it mildly, was extremely acquisitive. It remained in his possession until his death when it became the property of his son Eliakim II. He, not inheriting his father's ability, soon lost it and it has been in the hands of strangers for many years. Finlay I built the house, which was the most pretentious one in the village in its day. It must now have reached the century mark, if it has not passed it, and it is still a comfortable residence.

It is not known whether any of the five daughters of Finley I inherited any of his property.

From 1800 to 1837, the year of the Rebellion, we know very little of the activities of the Malcolms. They must have endured many privations and put in a great deal of toil as they redeemed their homes from the forests. However, common hardships produced good will and fellowship. The women were constantly experimenting, and every helpful discovery was duly passed on to the neighbors. There were no doctors for years, but the women grew very skillful with herbs. In the autumn the housewives would organize an expedition into the woods to gather roots and herbs for the replenishment of medicine chests. Advice and recipes were given by the Indians who had their own remedies, proven good by long usage. It is said that when doctors finally did arrive in the village they found it difficult to make a living because the women were so skillful in doctoring their own families.

There were no roads, a blazed trail forming the line of communication. This proved no obstacle to social gatherings, whose rarity made them all the more enjoyable. Weddings were the occasion of great jollification. For a long time there was no minister to perform this ceremony. Later, itinerant preachers made visits to the settlers, and the meetings were held in the log cabins of the people. School houses, when they eventually had them, were utilized for meeting places. There was not a church building in Scotland until 1849.

Tryphena Malcolm, the wife of Finley I., predeceased him by many years. She died at the age of 52. After her death Finlay married Mrs. Hannah Steinhoff of Simcoe. She bore him no children. Both of his wives were buried in the old Oakland Burying ground. Finlay died in September, 1829, at the age of 79. He also rests in the Oakland cemetery, which seemed to be the only one for miles around at that date.

In the meantime settlers had been coming in steadily, and by 1837, the year of the Rebellion, Scotland had become a thriving village. Many industries had been started, such as a tannery, a wagon shop, a blacksmith shop, a harness shop, etc. Thus the farmers in the vicinity were well supplied.

It is appropriate to mention some of the events that led to the Rebellion. Although a disastrous failure at the time, it later gave freedom to Upper Canada and laid the foundation for the excellent Constitution which they now enjoy. Some time previous to 1837 the leaders among the Loyalists had emerged from the woods and, by Crown appointments to offices, fortunate land speculations, etc., were steadily acquiring power in the Province. They controlled the Executve and Legislative Councils, and in some instances the Governor himself had been laying the foundation of that powerful clique known as the "Family Compact," a group which practically ruled the Province. For some years they were supported by the rank and file of their own people, who were still busy clearing the forests and establishing their homes, and too busy to be interested in public affairs. The public lands were all in the hands of the Crown, that is, in the hands of its officials and their friends. It was easy for those with influence to acquire large tracts of Crown lands, free from taxation. These lands were later sold to speculators or settlers.

Large tracts of land were set aside for the Anglican Church, and they were called "Clergy Reserves." When the people began to wake up to what was going on, the growing discontent culminated in a rebellion by the common people, or Reformers, as they were called. This was agitated by William Lyon Mackenzie in Upper Canada and by Louis Papineau in the Lower Province. In his writings, Mackenzie exposed the machinations of the Tory government and roused the people to a state of fury. He was elected to a seat in the Legislature, time after time, only to be thrown out because of his so called seditious speeches and writings. At last it was decided to make a demonstration at Toronto, with Mackenzie as leader. Dr. Duncombe, who at the time was a member of the Legislative Council from Oxford County, was counted on by Mackenzie to assume leadership in the western part of the Province. Duncombe, however, by temperament, was ill-fitted to assume military leadership. To think of him as the head of a little force of poorly armed and untrained farmers would have been amusing were it not so tragic.

On December 5th, Mackenzie made his demonstration at Montgomery's Tavern, north of Toronto. It proved a dismal failure. Mackenzie himself was forced to flee to the United States for refuge.

It was five or six days after this engagement before the first tidings of rebellion reached the western districts, although as early as the 7th, arrangements were under way to send a force of regular soldiers and militia into the west under Col. Allan McNab. This force was actually on its way before Duncombe was aware of the happenings at Toronto. When Duncombe learned the facts, he instructed the leaders of the rebels at the different points of training, Burford, Norwich, Yarmouth, Bayham, etc., to gather at Scotland, where they would make their stand. The several groups had just assembled when word was received that McNab's force was approaching from the east and other Loyal contingents were on their way from London, Woodstock, and Simcoe.

Duncombe's little force, not more than 300 in number, poorly armed, hungry, and tired from marching all night, was so surely doomed to disaster that they decided to disperse and seek safety in flight. McNab's forces, amounting to 1600 men, assembled at Scotland and found the enemy flown. Not a shot was fired. A chest was found by the soldiers, buried in a field on the farm of Eliakim Malcolm, which held valuable papers belonging to the rebels, such as correspondence, muster roll, a list of all the leaders and the names of most of the men to be depended upon. This led to a great many arrests.

On the following day a proclamation was issued offering a reward of 500 pounds (cash) for the capture of Duncombe, and 250 pounds (English money) for the capture of Eliakim or James Malcolm. They both had escaped and were indicted for high treason. Whether they fled singly or together is not known. At once a reign of terror began among the rebels; the harshest treatment was meted out to them. Some were executed, but this extreme measure was frowned upon by the home government. McNab had no scruples and used Indians in his search for fugitives. It is said that there was a band of 100 Indians bearing the Royal Standards, their faces painted in the most awful manner. They were well armed and headed by the British officers while they searched in the woods for fugitive rebels. It is not pleasant to think that in 1837 armed bands of Indians, not far removed from savagery, were turned by one section of Canadians against their fellow Canadians.

Nearly all of the Malcolm family were more or less concerned in the uprising. Finlay III was arrested, tried, and sentenced to banishment in the convict colony in Van Dieman's Land in southern Australia (now Tasmania). He with many others was shipped by way of England. In England the rebels met with kindness and sympathy. They were finally pardoned and sent back home.

The story of some of the men who were sent into exile was pitiable; some died on the Island; others escaped with the aid of friendly whaling vessels. Some were forced to remain for long years, despite pardons, unable to leave the place of their banishment and return to their native land.

The following copy of an official document confirms the record of the trial and conviction of Finlay Malcolm and many others at this time. In this copy the long list of names is given once, and only indicated in the other places.

Peter Malcolm was sentenced to be hanged, but the authorities contented themselves with keeping him in jail all winter. John was also jailed. His son Norman, a mere lad, took the best team of horses and a sleigh with a good warm robe and drove to Hamilton, where his father was confined in jail. He thought his father would be freed immediately when he told the authorities that he was innocent. Much to his surprise and disgust, they promptly put him in jail and confiscated his outfit. The jail was so overcrowded that it was said that when one man wanted to turn over, they all had to turn at once.

In the Spring when young Norman was freed he took a team and wagon, drove to one of the Middle Western States and never returned. Of the other Malcolms, some were jailed and others were bound over to keep the peace.

Eliakim was in the States two years before being pardoned, when he returned to his home. What his adventures were in those two years is not known. The Americans treated the fugitives with great kindness and sympathy, and rendered aid. There is no space in this short chronicle to record their good deeds.

James Malcolm headed for the Detroit River and Michigan. The story is told that when he first reached the Detroit River he succeeded in hiring a man to row him across. When they were well out on the river a sentry spied them and called out, "Come back, or I'll shoot." Whereupon James took a revolver from his pocket and held it to his oarsman's head saying, "Go on, or I'll shoot." The man, being more afraid of the gun pointed at his head than the one on the shore, made all speed to the opposite bank, and they escaped. James was away for two years, with the exception of one or two stolen visits to his family. He was finally pardoned. After James' flight a band of Col. McNab's soldiers went to his farm searching for him. His wife, Elvira, met them at the door with a baby in her arms and other small children clinging to her skirts. She implored them to shoot her but to spare the children. She thought they were all going to be killed. When she found her fear groundless, she took her children and walked four miles through swamps and woods to the home of her father, Isaac Fairchild, where she remained until she heard that McNab and his soldiers had left the neighborhood. When she returned to her home, what a sight of desolation met her. Everything had been destroyed except burning the house. It had been set on fire, but the soldiers did not stay long enough to see it totally burned and, fortunately, the fire went out. Farm animals were killed; hogs in the pen were shot and left there. All the stores that had been put away for the winter use were ruthlessly destroyed. This was only one of the cases of wanton destruction. Many homes of the rebels were burned.

It is not surprising that for many years a feeling of most intense political bitterness prevailed. After this several of the younger members of the Malcolm family emigrated. Two of John's sons, Otis and Norman, were among them.

It is no doubt true that although responsible government was brought about by disciplined parties, it is also true that something was contributed by the ill-fated rebellion, even though it brought some men to the gallows, some to exile on the far side of the world, and suffering and want to many others.

Not long after the rebellion common schools were established, also municipal councils. There had been large numbers of private seminaries throughout the Province before this time, some of great excellence.

The earlier Malcolms believed in the Biblical injunction, "To increase and multiply and replenish the earth." Nearly all the children of Finlay I had large families, numbering from six to ten. They all clung to the old family names, and a ludicrous situation arose therefrom. There were so many young Duncans, Peters, Finleys, James, etc., that it became very difficult to know who was who. The only solution of the problem seemed to be to call the children of the 3rd generation by their father's first name, and as many of those were nicknames some most absurd names became prevalent. Johnathan Malcolm, for instance, had several sons and a daughter. One son, John, was known as "John Jack." Another son, Henry, was "Hank Jack."

Other nicknames were "Fin George," "Bill George," "Bill Dunk," "Guss Mark," "Frone Kim," "Ham Kim," "Charles Dunk," "George Dunk" and to clap the climax, "Dunky Dunk." An old doggerel, referring to four of the family Malcoms, who were great chums, went something like this: "Pheney George, Lizy Like, Pheney Fin, Sarah Jim." This ridiculous situation continued into the 4th and 5th generation, and there we find the following names: "Ed Shube," "John Hugh," "Mack Guss," "Jake Hugh," and countless others.

Shubael Malcolm was "Mr. Shubael," and his son was "Horry Shub," and his son was known as "Shub Horry." Eliakim was known as Eliakim. His son was "Kim Like," and his son was "Like Kim." That is how names are made. Had the 19th century been as illiterate as the medieval ages, none of the Malcolm clan would now be known as Malcolm.

SCOTLAND, BRANT COUNTY, 70 YEARS AGO

Scotland is eleven miles from Brantford, the county seat, and fourteen miles from Paris, a station on the Toronto Hamilton & Buffalo Railway, fare 75 cents. Mail daily. Population 400.

This village boasted of no less than ten blacksmiths and wagon makers, and they were Charles Baker, Albert Hooker, Samuel Hunter, Thomas Lawrence, George Phillips, Thomas N. Reynolds, William Reynolds, Robert Sullivan, Jonathan Thatcher, and John Taylor.

There were three coopers who made the barrels: Joseph Adair, Eddy Malcolm, and Jacob Groover.

The shoemakers were also well represented, they being: John Longhurst, Hugh Malcolm, Martin Malcolm, and William Place. Some peddling was done by the baker Gideon Walker and John Moore.

The carpenters and painters of the day were: William Buckberrough, Cornelius Corbin, Henry Hickson, George Malcolm, William Martin, John Powers, Henry Pretty, William Sloan, John Walker, and Charles Whitney.

John Moore is recorded as the violinist, and John Easton as a well digger. Robert Gillespie was the tanner and William Brown, constable.

Scotland was able to get along with only two hotels. They were kept by Peter J. Pilky and Joseph Schram. Apparently there was very little sickness as only two doctors appeared on the list. They were Dr. Edwin W. Taggert and Dr. Rolph Malcolm. James Van Dusen was the druggist.

It is of interest to note and compare the prevailing wages paid skilled craftsmen, also common labor, in the earlier period up to 1900 and after, with that of today; carpenters were paid from twelve and one half to twenty cents per hour, while the scale paid today is from one dollar and twenty-five cents to two dollars per hour. Masons, plumbers, and electricians are receiving about the same amount. One hour's pay today equals ten hours paid in the older period, and common labor today runs from forty cents to one dollar ten in the tobacco season. In addition to the low wages the workers faced unemployment for several months during the year, after the early manufacturing in the village had gone by the board.

The employment being what it was, and the prospect of a meager income, caused many of the young people to leave the farms, and the village, at a rather early age, seeking employment in other fields of endeavor.

The cash crops and income received in the earlier period were for the most part from the sale of live stock, grain, hay, fruits and vegetables. Large crops of onions were much in evidence, and most farmers and many tradesmen had an acre or more. These same old farms still produce good crops after one hundred and fifty years of cultivation. However, the main cash crop today has changed from that of general farming to the raising of tobacco. Thousands of acres are now seen under tobacco cultivation. It has become one of the largest export items produced.

This strong demand for tobacco farms has set the price pattern per acre. A good farm now brings two hundred dollars or more per acre, which is quite a contrast to the few cents paid by the early settlers.

SCOTLAND, ONTARIO
DEDICATED, OCTOBER 1848

"When thou enterest this sanctuary leave it not without praise and prayer for those who worship, for those who minister here, and for the peace of the world."

SCOTLAND EDIFICE PASSED THE CENTURY MARK AND CELEBRATED ITS ONE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OCTOBER 17, 1949.

In the Autumn of 1835 a group of twenty-two men and women banded together to form the Church of Christ of the Congregational Order, with the Rev. James Nall as their pastor. The first meetings were held in the School house at Malcolm's Mills known as the Black Door School of Oakland and in the School house back of Lyman's store in Scotland until the new Church was finished.

In October of 1847 a call was extended to the Rev. William Hay to become their pastor, which he accepted and remained their leader for forty seven years; Mr. Hay was born in Perth, of Scottish lineage and from that home came three sons into the ministry, William, James, and Robert. William was ordained Jan. 19, 1848. He was born in 1822, and died Jan. 16, 1897.

Soon after he arrived in Scotland a meeting of the congregation was called, and it was decided to proceed at once to build the new church they had so long planned. They rallied around the new young leader and in the Fall of 1849 they held their first service of worship in the new Church.

Some trouble was encountered in finding carpenters that could read plans, and build the pure Gothic windows that Mr. Hay insisted on; his good judgment is today evidenced in the beauty of this old edifice which still stands to his, and their memory. Their first lighting system was the tallow candle. Ever since its dedication it has been in continual service and thousands have been influenced through the Christian teachings by the outstanding men who have been the ministers of this Church for over one hundred fifteen years.

During Mr. Hay's pastorate he received almost a thousand persons into the fellowship of the Church, and he recalled four hundred and fifty weddings and nine hundred funerals; the first happy bride and groom to be married were John Smith and Miss Jane Merritt. Ernest Smith of Scotland is a grand son of this couple. Mr. Hay was very much interested in education and held many offices one being comparable to inspector of schools. He was also pastor of the church at Kilvin.

The history of the Scotland Congregational Church reflects a rich and colorful life. It recalls the high lights of the past, the happy and tender moments in the life of its families, in the weddings, the baptism of their children, and in the sorrowful passing of the dear, close friends and relatives.

A live church meets the changes in a community and gently guides the lives of its people through the theological beliefs that have opened the hearts and minds of its people all down through the ages. It has marked changes in the social customs, and has supplied wholesome leadership for one hundred and fifteen years and bids well to continue far beyond the lives of the present generation.

When a church is set in a community, its life and influence reach out to distant places, as the younger generation scatter far and wide as has been the case with this church; great is the opportunity and also the responsibility of such a church. The history of the Malcolm Family has been so closely identified with the life of this church that you cannot disassociate one from the other, all down through the years the Malcolm's have been prominent in all of its activities, from the very first organization meeting to the present day.

Resignation of the Rev. William Hay

"To the deacons, members, adherents of the Congregational Church, Scotland, Ont.

Dear Brethren:—It is now more than forty-seven years since I began my ministry among you, and I am sorry to break so sacred a tie, but my health having failed and being no longer able to perform the duties of my office I beg to resign my oversight of you in the Lord. In so doing I offer my best thanks for all the kindness you have shown me, and mine, with the hope that you will cast the mantle of charity over all my mistakes and errors.

From the first I have tried to preach Christ and Him crucified among you and I pray that you may appear with Him in glory at last."

Mr. Hay lived two years after he resigned, and four months after the passing of Augustus Malcolm, one of his deacons for forty-six years, who moved that Mr. Hay's resignation be accepted. This same Augustus Malcolm back in 1847 made the motion that a call be extended to Mr. Hay to become the pastor of the Scotland Church.

Following the resignation of the Rev. William Hay, the Church took on new life through the able leadership of a younger man in the person of the Rev. J. K. Unsworth. From the year of 1835 to 1950 the following men served as ministers of this church: Rev. James Nall, Rev. W. F. Clark, Rev. William Allworth, Rev. William Hay, Rev. J. K. Unsworth, Rev. A. M. Boyd, Rev. E. C. Bolton, Rev. Edward Hobbs, Rev. George E. Morley, Rev. A. J. Ore, Rev. Andrew Maun, Rev. E. L. Gasling, Rev. George Stephenson, Rev. E. B. Eddy, "a native son" of Scotland, Rev. Wray McKnight, Rev. W. A. Burbidge, and the present pastor, Rev. Roger C. Nunn.

At the time of the merger of the Presbyterian, Methodist, and the Congregational Churches, in the year 1925, the name of this Church was changed from the Congregtional to the Scotland United Church.

J. KARL MALCOLM

THE NUMBERING SYSTEM

Explanation of the Numbering:—The numbering in this book is arranged to treat all of the descendants of the emigrant ancestor as a single family. Thus the emigrant ancestor, Duncan Malcolm, is No. 1, and his children are given numbers 2, 3, 4, etc., in the order in which they are mentioned, and this number identifies this person wherever he is mentioned in the book. This brings the record of the entire family of father and children together on the page, including as much about the children as relates to the father's family.

When one of these children becomes the head of a new family, and there is further record regarding him, this is indicated by a * in front of his number. By noting his number and looking along to the paragraph bearing this same number in heavy blackface type, the record of him and his family is found. In adjacent paragraphs are the records of his brothers and sisters. Each child is given his own personal number, and when marked with a * his family record is found in the paragraph bearing the same number in blackface type.

The ancestral line of descent is given in italics following the name in each section that has the blackface numbering, first the father's name, then that of the grandfather, and so on back to Duncan the emigrant ancestor. To find the record of the father's family one notes the blackface number of the section and traces back through the numbers that are assigned to children until this number is reached. At this place the record of the father's family is given.

When only the name of a person is known, his personal number is found in the index. The references to names in the History are given by the page number.

The Malcolm Family

1. DUNCAN MALCOLM (McCallum, McCollom, MacColum, or McCullin) from Aberdeenshire, Scotland, came to America with his ten children about 1774. No record has been found of his wife. According to tradition, Duncan was born about 1720. He was a weaver by trade.

The family settled first at Watermill, near Southampton, Long Island, New York, (Long Island census of 1776); removed to Saybrook, Conn., in 1776, and later to Middlefield, Conn.

It is recorded in Savage's "Refugees from Long Island" that after the Battle of Long Island in 1776, "Dunkin McCollom, 6 persons, 1 lode of goods, 2 hogs," were transported on the sloop "Dove", Capt. Elijah Mason, from Sag Harbor, L. I., to Saybrook, Conn.

Probably Duncan settled up the Connecticut River, about Middlefield, where there were refugee sympathizers and where his daughter, Janet, later married Giles Miller, Jr.

In "Connecticut Men in the Revolution," there is a record that "Duman McCullin of Saybrook" was in the Second Regiment, Connecticut Line under Col. Heman Swift. There is another record on "Dunkin McCullin" who was paid from Mar. 9, 1781 to Dec. 31, 1781. These enlistments were on Mar. 13, 1781 for three years, and the records may refer to Duncan (1) or to Duncan (11).

The children of Duncan Malcolm (1) were all born in Aberdeenshire, Scotland.

They were:

2. First child, no record.
3. Second child, no record.
* 4. Finlay Malcolm, born in 1750; died September, 1829. Buried in Oakland Cemetery, Ontario, Canada.
* 5. Malcolm Malcolm, born in 1755.
6. John Malcolm, born in 1756; died Sept. 11, 1816. Buried in Oakland Cemetery, Ontario, Canada. No issue known.
7. A daughter, born about 1757.

8. A son, born about 1761.
* 9. Daniel Malcolm, born in 1763.
*10. Janet Malcolm, born 1764; died Nov. 16, 1816.
11. Duncan Malcolm, Jr., born about 1767. He married Ruby Strong. He was drowned at sea in 1796.

4. FINLAY MALCOLM, the son of Duncan (1), was born in 1750, in Aberdeenshire, Scotland. He died Sept. 18, 1829, and was buried in the old cemetery at Oakland, Ontario, Canada.

Finlay Malcolm was a Sea Captain. He owned a trading vessel that plied between Scotland and America. (ref. Duncan Malcolm in 1907.) Finlay set out for himself early in life as he is recorded in 1769 at Penobscot, now Castine, Maine, as an early settler on the northern bay, "Majobigwaduce." He is recorded in his Majesties service at Fort George during the seige by the Continentals in 1779. (ref. Dr. Colef's Journal of the seige of Fort George.)

About 1769, Finlay and his brother John were settlers of Northern Bay. He was also a member of the Penobscot Association Grant, at St. Andrews, in 1784. Finlay was a United Empire Loyalist and received a grant of land for his adherence to the King during the American Revolution.

At Castine, Maine, Finlay met and married Tryphena Wardwell. She was the daughter of Captain Daniel Wardwell of York, Me. Tryphena was born in 1761 at York, Me., and died in Oakland Township, Oxford (now Brant) County, Ontario, on Jan. 16, 1813. She was buried in the old Oakland cemetery.

In 1798, Finlay with his wife, Tryphena, and their family moved to Upper Canada. Before leaving Penobscot, Me., the records show that he sold out his real estate holdings amounting to several hundred acres.

Children of Finlay (4) and Tryphena (Wardwell) Malcolm.

*12. John Malcolm, born in 1776; died on Sept. 11, 1846.
*13. Daniel Malcolm, born 1777.
*14. Finlay Malcolm, Jr., born June 20, 1779; died Mar. 4, 1862.
*15. Sarah Malcolm, born on Sept. 1, 1784; died Sept. 20, 1860.

*16. Hugh Malcolm, born July 19, 1789, at St. Andrews, New Brunswick. He died May 17, 1828.
*17. Peter Malcolm, born probably at Penobscot, Me., in 1796. He died Aug. 31, 1864.
*18. Duncan Malcolm, born Aug. 1, 1798, enroute to Upper Canada. He died Oct. 31, 1866.
*19. James Malcolm, born Jan. 2, 1800, one of twins. He died Nov. 6, 1858.

In 1822, he married in Vermont, Samantha, daughter of Johnathan Sexton. She was born in 1806 and died Aug. 29, 1883, aged 78 years and five months.

Eliakim was a United Empire Loyalist. As such he received a grant of land from the government as appears in the Crown Land Records. He was involved in "Duncomb's Rebellion" in 1837.

The village of Scotland was laid out and surveyed by Eliakim. He was a leading spirit in the township for many years. Eliakim was the first Reeve of Oakland and first Warden in 1853-54 of Brant County. He launched the new county in his opening address to the Council in Jan. 1853, with all the dignity and circumstances befitting the occasion. It was said that he would have been the first sheriff of the county, had he accepted the offer of the government of that day, but he desired to be Registrar, and the Government being unable to gratify him in this, he declined to accept the Shrievalty. "Liak" Malcolm was a well known figure and man of affairs in the district and county with which he was associated for fifty years. 35. NORMAN MALCOLM (John, Finlay, Duncan), son of John (12) and Mary (Chapin) (Eddy) Malcolm, was born in Scotland, Ont., Feb. 29, 1820. He died Feb. 23, 1898, at Ames, Iowa, and was buried in Dillavou Cemetery, northeast of Glidden, Iowa.

When a mere lad he was sent by his mother with the best team of horses and a sleigh to get his father from the jail at Hamilton. On arriving at the jail he also was locked up with the other prisoners from Duncombe's Rebellion. After being released the following Spring he set out in 1837 from Canada at the age of 17 with a team and wagon to go to 'The States,' probably via Detroit, through Indiana and to Illinois where he settled at Cambridge, Ill. Here he bought land from the government at $1.25 per acre and set to work clearing the land and making a home.

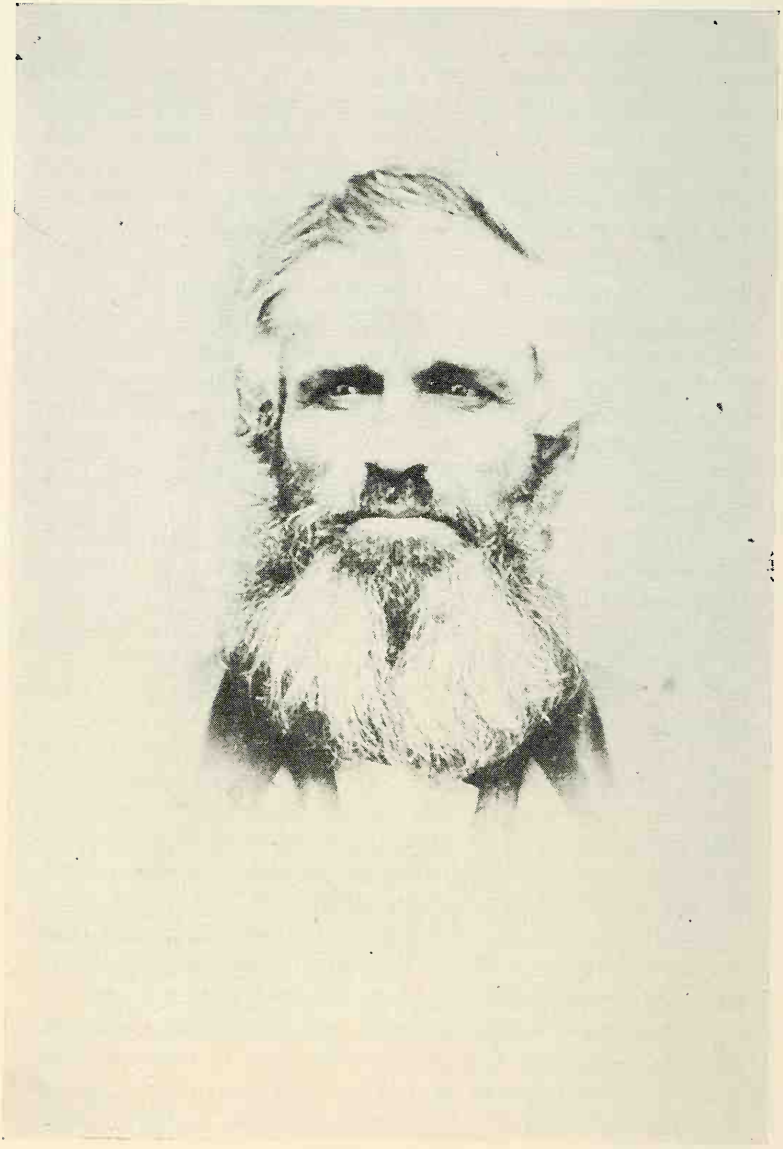
A yellowed newspaper clipping in the possession of his grand-daughter, Mrs. Frank Lake of San Francisco, headed "Pioneer Brought Clover and Bees to Henry County," gives details of his early days. "The first man he met here was James Tilson, who surveyed and platted Cambridge and became its first County Judge. Tilson and Malcolm lived that first winter in a cave back of the present Becker home east of Cambridge. Malcolm, in the day of an abundance of wild hay and slough grass, decided that the need was urgent for clover. He rode his horse to Ohio and brought back a bushel of clover seed. The first years' crop was a failure so the next year he went again to Ohio and brought back more clover seed and a collection of bees to pollinate the crop. The second crop was successful and clover became a most important crop in Henry County in early days."

He often told of cradling his grain, threshing it out with a flail or with oxen tramping it, and of marketing it in Chicago. He would start out with a wagon load of wheat, no other supplies but a vest pocket full of salt. He and the team subsisted on the wheat on a week's journey. Arriving at Chicago, he sold the wheat for enough money to buy a bolt of calico for dresses for his wife and daughters.

Norman married Cynthia Cady, daughter of Stephen Cady and Cynthia Robinson. The Cadys are descendants of Sgt. Nicholas Cady and his wife, Judith Knapp, immigrants to Watertown, Mass., in 1630. Cynthia (Cady) Malcolm died May 13, 1863, and was buried in the little cemetery east of Cambridge, Ill. There were nine children.

Norman married, 2nd., Elvira Straight and had two daughters, May and Jennie, who with their mother later removed to Los Angeles, Cal. Norman, having deeded over his then fine farm of 600 acres to his second wife in a separation agreement, removed to Glidden, Iowa, there to pioneer again. Here he married, 3rd, in 1873, Frances (Poore) Powell, widow of Henry L. Powell, and one-time neighbor of Stephen Cady's family at Cuba, N. Y., before coming to Illinois in 1845 or thereabouts. They had one son.

Frances Poore's immigrant ancestors were Daniel Poore and



NORMAN MALCOLM (35)
1820-1898

Mary Farnum who came to Boston on the ship "Bevis" in 1638, later to settle at Andover, Mass. By an interesting trick of fate, Eliakim Wardwell, of the Malcolm line, left an orphan of 5 years by the execution of his father, Samuel, at Salem "because he told fortins", was "Bound Out" by the worthy selectmen of Andover to Daniel Poore. It is very likely that husband and wife in Iowa in 1873 never knew how their lives were intertwined through their ancestors in Massachusetts in 1693.

Norman Malcolm was a man of medium stature and weight, an excellent hand with axe, cradle or flail, quick and active physically and mentally. He was very social, fond of discussion, and always searching for new and better ideas. His home at East Cambridge must have been a sort of social center. He had dances for the country-side, frequently and regularly. His rule was "Come early, go early, and no drinking." At midnight he would stop the music and send the guests home.

The boy of limited schooling became the man of broad education and a great reader. His favorite authors were Darwin, Spencer, Huxley, Tyndall and Draper, newly arisen leaders in the awakening thought of the times. He was a "Black Abolitionist" and his house was a station on "the Underground Railroad." Often he spent the night hauling fugitive slaves on their way to Canada and freedom. Naturally, his favorite crusaders were William Lloyd Garrison, Henry Ward Beecher, Harriet Beecher Stowe and Elizabeth Cady Stanton, while John Brown was in his eyes a martyr as great as Bruno or Galileo.

In the days of the little red school house, or none at all, he advocated that the school house should be the biggest and best building in the community and should be used days, nights and Sundays as a sort of forum for lectures, entertainments, debates, musicals, plays, dances and all other forms of social as well as educational activity.

He was fond of games, a champion checker player, and inveterate card player. To the young folks he would say, "If you want to play cards come into the house, don't sneak off to the hay-mow,—and no gambling." Of eugenics he used to say, "Every child born into the world has a right to be born with a healthy body and a healthy mind."

Critical of whatever appeared wrong, he was yet charitable, saying "Everybody does the best he knows, if they knew better they would do better. Trouble is they do not know and, worse still, they are disinclined to learn." He was always anxious to do battle with wrong to make the world a better place in which to live.

His broad reading developed his religious and social philosophy into sharp conflict with the prevailing rigid orthodox beliefs. He argued with the minister and got the reputation of "Infidel." In boyhood and early manhood he was an active member of the Methodist church, but his realism could not be tolerated so he was churched. He certainly was unorthodox, but with equal certainty he was not irreligious. The essence of the Ten Commandments, love and good deeds, meant as much to him as to anyone, and more than to most.

He rejoiced in the emancipation of the thought of mankind from the shackles of ignorance and oppression. When Garibaldi led Italy to throw off the yoke he named a daughter Italy. When hygiene cured him of dyspepsia he named a son Hygene.

From 1860 until his demise Norman advocated the equality of the sexes; a single standard of morality for men and women; dress reform (short skirts for women); short hair for women; votes for women; temperance reform; divided skirts so that women could ride astride on horseback; dietary reform (he always ate Dr. Graham's bread, now whole wheat); and better education for young and old.

Always a subscriber to the New York Tribune, he was an enthusiastic supporter of the new party of "Republicans." Horace Greeley was his trumpeter and Abraham Lincoln his Champion.

Shubael Downs Malcolm was well enough off to provide a good beginning for each of his four sons. The "Downs" in his name was in honor of a Colonel Downs who was a resident of South Hampton, L. I., and who occasionally used to take the long trip from Long Island to Scotland, Ont., to visit his old friends the Malcolms.

The Shubael, which runs down the line from the earliest days, is of course, a scriptural name. It means "Captive of God." Around the 1630's, a Shubael Downer graduated from Harvard. He married a Wardwell girl and went to Maine as a missionary. Shubael was killed by the Indians. Because of this martyrdom the Wardwells kept the name in existence. Tryphena Wardwell married Finlay Malcolm and the name was given to his grandson, Shubael Downs Malcolm, and in turn to his grandson, Shubael Douglas Malcolm. They had four sons.

He was born July 8, 1878, near the middle of a large cornfield called Iowa. Norman was the only child of his mother's second and his father's third marriage. He married Elsie A. Davis at Chicago, Ill., May 15, 1902.

Norman graduated as an electrical engineer at Iowa State College in 1899. He moved to Chicago, Ill., and put two small companies on their feet. Then he left them to grow up while he engaged in engineering and contracting in the United States and Cuba.

Later, Mr. Malcolm had a ranch in North Dakota. He also engaged in accounting for numerous Farmer's Co-Operative elevators and just escaped getting involved in politics via the Non-Partisan League.

Not long after we became involved in the first World War, the Y.M.C.A. advertised that they "had enough preachers and wished that they had some truck drivers." Mr. Malcolm volunteered and went to France for two years, doing transportation, construction and salvage work.

Returning to New York City, he located there in the investment business. The office was on Broadway, overlooking Trinity Church. Calling one day at the building on the opposite side of the church, he accidentally discovered and made the acquaintance of his cousin, Shubael Douglas Malcolm, and learned that he was born in Scotland Village, Ont. This led to a joint interest in the Genealogy of the Malcolms. That interest has been persued with pleasure and enthusiasm for twenty-five years, even unto the present. Much of the research to obtain the material in this book was the result of their tireless energy.

Mr. Malcolm has been to Europe three times and visited every library, museum and art gallery that he could find. He has also visited each of the forty-eight states. In these, he visited every old book shop that he could discover.

After spending several winters in Florida, he retired and located permanently in the Land of Sunshine where he and his wife lived the simple life, not failing to give daily thanks to a beneficent Providence. He liked old books, old pictures, old practices, old principles and was not fond of modern writers, painters, musicians, movies, murder mysteries, psycho-analysts or omniscient radio commentators. The Sermon on the Mount yet remains.

He believed that children should be taught to obey their parents, to study their lessons, to show respect to their elders, and if need be, to be disciplined in the old fashioned way, and to be taught to think. He had one wife, one son, one daughter-in-law, and one grand-child which were all highly satisfactory to him. Mr. Malcolm wished for them as happy a life as he has had.

154. DR. JOHN ROLPH MALCOLM (Shubael, Finlay, Finlay, Duncan) was the son of Shubael Downs (45) and Elvira (Foster) Malcolm. He was born in 1839 and died Jan. 13, 1895, at his daughter's home in Corunna, Mich. The "Rolph" in Dr. John Rolph Malcolm's name is after a Burford man named Rolph who was the hero of this area in the Rebellion of 1837.

Dr. Malcolm graduated from McGill University in 1861. He practiced his profession in Scotland, Ont., and vicinity. He was also associated with his two brothers in the foundry business and in farming.

The best looking girl in the town was Sophrona Malcolm. It is told that she had been picked out as the best looking girl in the county and selected to dance with Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, when he visited Brantford about 1857. Dr. Malcolm could not resist her charms and spent the rest of his life under her autocratic rule. She was beautiful, even as an old lady, but she was so fussy and exacting that whenever one of her nieces in far away Utah got a little "uppish" they were told "now don't try and Aunt Sophrona us."

This Aunt Sophrona (92), known to the family as "Frony" Malcolm, won the bitter enmity of her mother-in-law, Elvira, known as "Viry," wife of Shubael Downs (45) Malcolm, when one day she made a call and while waiting in the parlor noticed that the organ had not been recently dusted, and wrote with her finger on the top of the organ the word "Dust." Her mother-in-law never forgave her.

As stated above, Dr. Malcolm married Sophrona (92) Malcolm, his cousin, a daughter of Eliakim (21) Malcolm. She was born Mar. 10, 1842, and died Nov. 5, 1912, at Corunna, Mich. Both were buried in the family lot in Scotland, Ont. They had one daughter.

414. Edna Alberta Malcolm was born Oct. 17, 1888.

156. EGBERT G. MALCOLM (Shubael, Finlay, Finlay, Duncan) was the son of Shubael Downs (45) and Elvira (Foster) Malcolm. He was born in Scotland, Ont., in 1851 and died in 1918.

Egbert known as "Ed" Malcolm was outfitted by his father for business in Toronto, where he entered as a student merchant with John Cato and Company, a large Toronto store, which is still going strong. He stayed for a couple of years enjoying city life, then Egbert, who was infatuated with a dark haired beautiful cousin of his, Elvira Foster, daughter of Alonzo Foster, couldn't stay any longer and came back and married her. His father then set him up in a store in Scotland. He got along very well until his store was destroyed by a fire which burned the entire block that faced the road leading to Oakland. This was about 1887.

Egbert then went to Westmeath, Ont., where he entered into partnership with Alexander Fraser, and for years "Fraser and Malcolm" were successful money making merchants. Finally his business was sold when Fraser died and "Ed" Malcolm finished his life as an employee of the Customs Department in Ottawa, Ontario. Elvira Foster, his wife who was born in 1854, survived him for many years and died in 1934 at Toronto at the home of Mrs. Ward, who was Gertrude Eddy, a daughter of Joseph Eddy and Alletta Foster, a sister of Elvira. This name "Alletta" is important historically because the grandmother of these two girls, Alletta Foster, the mother of Alonzo, was a de Rapelie.

In the History of Brooklyn, N. Y. in 1637, Jorris Jansen de Rapelie obtained a grant of three hundred acres on Wallebout Bay, Brooklyn, where the Navy Yard now is. He was the son of a de Rapelie, who was killed at the massacre of St. Bartholomew in Paris. He fled to Holland, thence to New Amsterdam and the tradition is that the first girl baby born in New Amsterdam was Alletta de Rapelie. She received a silver cup for this honor from the Dutch Governor. They came to Canada as U.E.L. during the Revolutionary War. Egbert and Elvira (Foster) Malcolm had no children.

157. HORACE FINLAY MALCOLM (Shubael, Finlay, Finlay, Duncan) was the son of Shubael Downs (45) and Elvira (Foster) Malcolm. He was born in Scotland, Ont., in 1856. He was outfitted for business by his father, and with his brother, Egbert, went to Toronto where he entered as a student merchant with John Cato and Company. After Egbert left Toronto, Horace Finlay, a gay young blade, returned to Scotland because his parents did not think it wise for him to stay in Toronto alone. After his return to Scotland, he fell in love with Mary Medilla Mills, a brown haired, hazel eyed, rosy cheeked, daughter of Thomas Mills. This Thomas Mills came to Canada about 1842 with two of his brothers from Maidstone, Kent, England.

Horace was established by his father in a plant called "The Foundry", just east of Scotland, where they manufactured plows, harrows and tilling implements. He, like his brother, Charles, had a mechanical mind. This foundry was the same one owned by Charles, the older brother, who for reasons of his own left Scotland for Michigan.

Horace was then only twenty-eight years old and it is said that he invented the detachable point to the plow and his machines had a reputation for quality of workmanship, which was not equalled by other manufacturers. He did a very satisfactory business, but could not meet the competition of the larger companies. While he was good at manufacturing, he never collected a bill and in 1886 went broke and left for Australia to recoup his fortune. He died in Adelaide, Australia in 1904 of a heart attack, after he had recuperated from a fall from his horse.

Horace Finlay married about 1876 Mary Medilla Mills of Oakland, Ont., a daughter of Thomas Mills, whose farm was the first one west of Oakland on the Scotland Road. Mary Mills was born in Oakland, Ont., Dec. 19, 1856, and died in Patchogue, Long Island, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1924, from an accidental fall downstairs. She was buried in Scotland, Ont. Horace and Mary had four children.

went to high school in Brantford, and studied medicine for two years at Trinity College, Toronto, before he married.

In October 1884, Harry married Elsie Grace Durham a music teacher of Harrisburgh, Ont., in the Congregational Church at Scotland, Ont. He taught school for a time, then went into the general store business in Harrisburgh. Harry worked in the first Government Land Office in Innisfail for twelve years.

In 1892, Harry moved to Innisfail, Alberta, Canada, and was Editor of the Free Lance, which paper in later years was taken over by the Innisfail Province. The Malcolms moved to the Aberdeen district, six miles from town, in 1911, where he settled on a section and one half of land and took up farming. Here they reared their large family.

Harry Malcolm was a liberal in politics and always took a keen interest in both provincial and dominion affairs. He was a keen debater and appeared on many platforms throughout the province. He was secretary of the Aberdeen School District for many years and was a councillor of the M.D. of Arthur for one term. He helped build the first school at Aberdeen, and taught for one year. Harry was a member of the Independent Order of Oddfellows.

Mr. Malcolm passed away Jan. 3, 1946 and Mrs. Malcolm continued on the farm up to the time of her death, May 9, 1950. She took a keen interest in community activities and in the pioneer days the Malcolm home was always open house to the friends and neighbors of the whole district. They had twelve children.

Being interested in higher education, she was of the opinion that future generations would have need of a broader education in order to maintain the higher standard that the average person wishes to attain. She therefore left a scholarship in the amount of $8300 to the University of Michigan located in Ann Arbor, Mich., and $7600 to the University of Alberta, located at Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, for the benefit of the descendants of her brothers and sister, Editha Blanch Malcolm

Lambert, according to the terms of the will which is recorded in the Register of Deeds, Washtenaw County, Ann Arbor, Mich.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF EMMA CLARISSA MALCOLM

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS. That I, Emma Clarissa Malcolm, residing at 521 Linden Street in the City of Ann Arbor, Michigan, being of sound mind, memory, and understanding, do make my last will and testament in the manner and form following, hereby revoking any previous wills by me made.

ONE I direct that all my just debts and taxes that may be chargeable against me or my Estate and all the expenses of my last sickness and funeral expenses shall be paid.

TWO I give and devise my real estate located in the City of Ypsilanti, Michigan, known as 703 Oxford Road being Lot No. 104 College Heights Subdivision; also Lot No. 210 Monroe Boulevard Subdivision, located in the City of Dearborn, Michigan, to my brother J. Karl Malcolm in payment of debt owed by me to him.

THREE To my grandniece and name sake, Emma Edith Malcolm of 521 Linden Street, Ann Arbor, Michigan, I bequeath all my lots in Washtenong Memorial Park, known as 300, B. 101, B. 302, B 303, B. 304, B. 305, B; in the event of the sale of the said lots during my life time, I direct my executor that any remaining funds from the proceeds of such sale at the time of my death shall be paid to Emma Edith Malcolm.

FOUR I give and bequeath the sum of $5000.00 of my estate to the Regents of the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, Michigan, for the purpose of establishing a scholarship fund to be used primarily for scholarships at the University of Michigan. Such scholarships are hereby intended to be inclusive of tuition, room and board, books, and other expenses in the sound discretion of the Regents or their authorized representatives, according to the reasonable needs of the beneficiaries thereof, said scholarships are to be for the primary use of my nieces and nephews and their descendants, being children of my brothers and sister as follows:

Frank Fillmore Malcolm of Innisfail, Alberta, Canada
Harry Abana Malcolm of Innisfail, Alberta, Canada
Hayward Malcolm of Scotland, Ontario, Canada
Robert Duncan Malcolm of Flint, Michigan
Rolph Malcolm of Tontogany, Ohio
J. Karl Malcolm of Ann Arbor, Michigan
Editha Blanch Malcolm Lambert of Ann Arbor, Michigan

Full and complete power of investment and re-investment is hereby granted to the Regents for the purpose hereof without any limitation whatsoever.

If at any time more than one of my nieces and nephews and their descendants shall apply, I suggest the INCOME THEREOF be given to the one believed by said Regents or their proper representatives to be the most needy, providing there is not sufficient cash available for their joint needs. I further request that in case any qualified applicant shall show a need for funds to assist them in high school or preparatory school that the Regents of the University of Michigan grant such request providing funds are available, and under such rules and regulations as shall be established therefor by the Regents. It is intended that any money given for scholarships to my nieces and nephews and their descendants shall be a gift, nevertheless should any one of them desire to repay the money so obtained such repayment or any part thereof shall be made a part of the principal of the Emma Clarissa Malcolm Fund, to be used as herein provided. I further request that unused income shall be added to the principal every three years. If during a period of fifteen years no qualified applicant appears to claim such scholarship fund the Regents of the University of Michigan may in their discretion loan the funds available to any student or students in attendance at the University of Michigan that may be in need of financial assistance.

FIVE The Regents shall furnish to my lineal descendants upon request a statement of the financial status of the fund from time to time as such requests shall be made.

SIX If there shall be available funds in the residue of my estate after paying the taxes, expenses of administration and bequests herein made, such executor or fiduciary may give such funds in the residue in such proportion and shares as he may determine in his discretion to the Governing Board of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, Canada, and to the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan; or my executor or fiduciary may give such funds to either of them to the exclusion of the other in his sole discretion and judgment without any order of the Probate Court and under such terms and conditions as he may impose. It being intended that the residue of my estate shall be disposed of as provided in this paragraph six (6).

SEVEN If for any reason there shall not be sufficient money and property to cover the legacies here in made, then I direct that the bequest herein made to the Regents of the University of Michigan shall not be paid until the other legacies shall be satisfied and paid.

EIGHT I hereby appoint my brother, J. Karl Malcolm, as executor of this my will to act without bond, bond being hereby expressly waived, and I further empower him to sell my real and personal estate without license of the Probate Court, the same as I could do if living.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 29th day of August, in the year of our Lord One Thousand nine hundred forty-six.

The foregoing instrument contained on this and the foregoing pages was on this 29th day of August, 1946, signed by Emma Clarissa Malcolm, the testatrix therein named, and duly published and declared by her to be her last will and her sole and complete act and deed in the presence of us, who at her request and in her presence and in the presence of each other, have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses. And we and each of us do also certify that the signature of the testatrix was duly made upon the said foregoing instrument and was seen by us thereon before we signed and that we and each of us do now believe the said testatrix to be at this time of sound mind and memory.

(Emma Clarissa Malcolm) (SEAL)

WITNESSES:
(Arlene R. Reiff) Residing at Ann Arbor, Michigan.

He was born in Scotland, Ont., Mar. 26, 1878, and attended the public school there. In 1892, he moved to Port Huron, Mich., and four years later to Lapeer, Mich. At the latter place, John Karl learned the tailoring trade and business with his brother, Robert Duncan Malcolm. He moved to Ann Arbor, Mich., in 1901 and was associated with Charles W. Wagner and Co., Merchant Tailors.

In 1906, Karl, as he is known, established a tailoring business in Ann Arbor at 118 East Liberty St., and continued there for five years. In 1908 he built his home at 1606 Cambridge Road. Then he built the first section of the Malcolm Building at 600-612 East Liberty St. in 1911. Selling out the tailoring business in 1922, Karl opened a real estate office in his own building.

He was a stockholder and general manager of the Ypsi-Ann Land Company, which developed the Subdivisions known as College Heights, College Heights No. I., College Heights Estates and Prospect Park, all in Ypsilanti, Michigan. This company, also developed the Oak Park Subdivision on Washtenaw Road, U. S. 23 and Packard St. The total of all these subdivisions was four hundred acres. The first fifteen houses in the subdivision were built by Karl Malcolm and his brother, J. Rolph Malcolm (248).

The stores at 210-212-214-216 South 4th Ave., accupied by Montgomery Ward and Company, were built by the Ypsi-Ann Land Company. They also built the seven story Wolverine office building at 202 East Washington St., Ann Arbor. All of this construction was supervised by Karl Malcolm.

In addition to his many business activities, he has always found time to do his part in civic affairs. In 1922, he conducted the second community fund campaign, has continued active in the work and had a part in the early planning of the organization and policy of the board.

Mr. Malcolm has served two full terms as a director of the Y. M. C. A. and is a trustee at the present time. He always had a hand in the several campaigns. During the first World War, all the drives headed up in the Y. M. C. A. He was also active in obtaining the land and the buildings for the Y. M. C. A. camp, known as Camp Birkett. He was assistant director of the Congregational Church Boy Scout Troop.

Joining the Congregational Church at Scotland, Ont., in 1890, he transfered his membership to the First Congregational Church in Port Huron. In 1896 he again transferred to the Presbyterian Church at Lapeer, and in 1901 affiliated with the First Congregational Church in Ann Arbor, Mich. In this church, Mr. Malcolm has served as a Trustee and a Deacon for two terms of four years each, and has always had an active part in all the activities of the church.

In 1905 Karl Malcolm was invited to become a Mason, joining the Golden Rule Lodge, F. & A. M. Number 159; in 1946 he was made a Life Member of Golden Rule Lodge. He was also a member of the Washtenaw Chapter of Royal Arch Masons No. 6, Ann Arbor, receiving the Red Cross Degree Mar. 10, 1914. On Mar. 24, 1914, he received the Order of the Temple, becoming a member of the Ann Arbor Commandery No. 13 Knights Templar, and on Mar. 31, 1914, the Order of Malta. He was also a member of the Moslem Shrine of Detroit, Mich. Both he and Mrs. Malcolm were members of the Eastern Star.

In 1922, Karl was made a member of the Local, State, and National Board of Realtors, serving as Treasurer of the State Association for one year. He was president of the Local Board for two terms.

He was made a member of the Ann Arbor Rotary Club in 1917, shortly after the Ann Arbor Club was chartered. Karl has held a life membership in the Michigan Union since it was organized, is a member of Barton Hills Country Club and the Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce. He is the author of this book. 273. ORLIN OTTMAN FLETCHER (Margaret Smith, Catherine, Finlay, Duncan) was the son of David C. and Margaret (81) (Smith) Fletcher. He was born July 29, 1847, in Scotland, Ont.

Dr. Fletcher resided in Scotland until early manhood and was well acquainted with his grandmother, Catherine (Malcolm) Smith. From her, Orlin acquired a knowledge of the personalities and experiences of the older generations of the Malcolms in the villages of Scotland and Oakland. Those were stirring times and Grandmother Catherine's stories interested the young Orlin who, in his turn, was an excellent reconteur.

His interest in the ancestry of the Malcolm family began when he was a young man and continued until his demise, Oct. 20, 1937, aged ninety years. It was he who found the record of Capt. Finlay Malcolm in Castine, Maine, and traced his migrations to St. Andrews, Nova Scotia, and later to Upper Canada. On his father's side Orlin was descended from Bathsheba Chapin, and through her from Deacon Samuel Chapin of Springfield, Mass.

In 1883 Dr. Fletcher received a degree from the Baptist Union Theological Seminary, Morgan Park, Ill., where the study of the ancient Hebrew language and literature flourished. He had a speaking familiarity with 11 languages and a reading knowledge with 26 languages. He received the B.A. degree from the University of Chicago in 1883; the M.A. degree in 1887 from Colgate University; and the D.D. degree in 1888 from Shurtleff College.

Dr. Fletcher was licensed to preach by the Rockford, Michigan, Church in 1873 and was ordained a Baptist Minister at Spring Lake, Mich., June 8, 1876. He held Baptist pastorates in Michigan at Spring Lake, Allegan, and Caro. He also served churches in Ottawa, Aurora and Springfield, Ill.; at Chicopee Falls, Mass., and Suffield, Conn.

He was a member of the Southern Association for Psychology and Philosophy; Pi Gamma Mu; Mitgleider der Kant Gesellschaft; and a Professor of Philosophy and Social Sciences at Furman University, Greenville, S. C., from 1908 to his retirement in 1927. Then he was made Professor Emeritus, much honored and beloved by all who knew him. He was regarded as one of the ablest of scholars and a very capable teacher. As his life work brought him seven scholastic acknowledgements, so those who read this family history may rightly applaud him who helped most to initiate this record in which his own accomplishments make him a bright ornament on the family tree.
